The Honorable Tom Wheeler
Chairman
Federal Communications Commission

Dear Chairman Wheeler:

The rural communities located in my Northern Missouri Congressional District rely on broadband Internet access as a tool to build businesses, apply for jobs, enhance educational opportunities and connect to friends and relatives. With this in mind, I write to emphasize how important it is to ensure that the final details of Phase II of the Connect America Fund (CAF II) live up to its promise.

CAF II offers a tremendous opportunity to bring speedier broadband connections to millions of Americans who wouldn't otherwise receive these benefits. Thanks to the Federal Communication Commission's (FCC) well-publicized efforts, thousands of rural communities are now counting on CAF II. And because CAF II represents the final phase of Universal Service reform for these areas, the FCC's rules will effectively determine whether millions of rural residents have a broadband connection or not.

To the FCC's credit, the June 10 Further Notice of Proposed Rule-Making (FNPRM) identifies a number of constructive ideas that could help achieve the speedier network goals without exceeding the CAF II annual budget. Indeed, the FNPRM has also raised hopes further by more than doubling the promised download speeds from 4 Mbps to 10 Mbps. However, I am concerned that if the FCC more than doubles the speed requirements without allowing the appropriate level of flexibility in other elements of CAF II, the program's overall mission could be endangered.

The CAF II funding period must be extended from the current 5 years to 10 years in order to allow adequate time for the construction of the higher-capacity network. Further, the FCC also must establish network build-out parameters consistent with the goal of providing quality broadband service to as many people as possible within CAF's limited funding framework. As such, providers must be given the flexibility to substitute extremely high-cost locations with unserved locations in partially-served census blocks.

Despite the FCC's efforts to overcome the digital divide, I still often hear from constituents seeking assistance to bring broadband service to their homes. The concerns they raise are a reminder of how challenging rural broadband policy can be, but also how important it is. Thank you for considering my concerns, and I look forward to working with you.

Sincerely,

OFFICE OF
THE CHAIRMAN

The Honorable Sam Graves
U.S. House of Representatives
1415 Longworth House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Congressman Graves:

Thank you for your letter regarding the implementation of certain aspects of Phase II of the Connect America Fund (CAF II). In your letter, you express concerns that the overall mission of the CAF II program could be endangered if the Commission increases the current broadband speed benchmark for program recipients to 10 Mbps downstream /1 Mbps upstream without allowing flexibility in other elements of the program, and suggest several proposals to provide such flexibility. Your views are very important and will be included in the record of the proceeding and considered as part of the Commission's review.

I agree with you that high-speed broadband access is an essential component for economic growth in rural communities. The universal service program is one of the most important tools at our disposal to ensure that consumers and businesses in rural America have the same opportunities as their urban and suburban counterparts to be active participants in the United States of the 21st century. We are focused on updating the universal service high-cost program to ensure that we are delivering the best possible voice and broadband experiences to rural America within the confines of our Connect America budget, while providing increased certainty and predictability for all carriers and a climate for increased broadband expansion.

In April, the Commission voted to move forward with Phase II of the Connect America Fund for price-cap carriers. Among other things, the Connect America Fund Phase II Report & Order sets a term of 10 years for support awarded through the competitive bidding process to stimulate greater interest from participants and ensure that funding is targeted efficiently to expand broadband-capable infrastructure throughout the country. In addition, in the associated Further Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (FNPRM), the Commission sought comment on a number of the issues you raise, including revising the current broadband performance obligations to require minimum speeds of 10 Mbps downstream, and applying the same performance obligations to all recipients of Phase II support and to rate-of-return carriers. The FNPRM also seeks comment on a proposal to allow recipients more flexibility as to other components of the program, such as the ability to substitute locations in partially-served census blocks for locations in the unserved census block for which it received support.

We expect a robust record on these topics and I welcome a dialogue with stakeholders as to how best to accomplish our shared objectives. I look forward to working with you as we continue reforming and modernizing the universal service fund high-cost program – as well as other components of the Fund – to ensure that all Americans have access to robust voice and broadband services.

I appreciate your interest in this matter. Please let me know if I can be of any further assistance.

Sincerely,
